Biography:

Mohit Amlani (b. 1999, Surat, India) is a Berlin-based photographer currently pursuing an MA in Photography at the University of Europe for Applied Sciences. His practice moves fluidly between commercial and documentary photography, with a particular focus on fashion, concerts, and hip-hop dance battles. Before relocating to Germany, he collaborated with leading brands and cultural initiatives in India, working across fashion, events, and creative production. In Berlin, he has expanded his professional experience through his work with CeeCee Berlin, contributing to editorial city imagery, portraiture, and brand-driven visual storytelling. His visual approach is defined by a close, immersive engagement with his subjects. Working frequently with wide-angle lenses, he experiments with grain, saturated color palettes, and strong symmetry to evoke a sense of energy, presence, and atmosphere within each scene.
